The Cleveland Museum of Art's Collection of Decorative Arts

The Cleveland Museum of Art's collection of decorative arts is internationally renowned and one of the best in the United States. Consisting of approximately 5,000 objects, the holdings are known for their importance and artistic quality, with many works considered some of the finest of their type in the world.

With 18 months into her role as Ellen S. and Bruce V. Mavec Curator of Decorative Arts, De Wit will share her insights on the collection, discuss her curatorial strategy, and give an overview of decorative arts-related museum projects and forthcoming exhibitions. She will also present her first two acquisitions for the museum – a silver nautilus cup and a delftware flower pyramid.
